Gentlemen:

Pursuant to your request we have examined the accounts and records of the Town of Harrington for the municipal year ended February 14, 1970. This examination was performed in accordance with generally accepted municipal auditing standards and included all procedures considered necessary in the circumstances, including direct confirmation with depositories as to General and Trust Fund balances.

Maine Department of Health and Welfare
Division of Public Health Nursing, Bureau of Health
Annual Report of Public Health Nursing Services in Harrington in the Year 1970

The public health nurse has provided nursing services through the following channels: (a) conferences with local citizens who help to promote health care, (b) conferences with town officials and school personnel, (c) at health clinics, and (d) in individual homes.

Parents with pre-school children were invited to attend Child Health Conferences at Columbia Falls, Jonesport, and Milbridge. At these conferences the children received medical examinations and immunizations. Nine children were given diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis vaccine; sixteen were given poliomyelitis (oral) vaccine; and two were given a smallpox vaccination.

The school health program included medical examinations, tuberculin testing and immunizations. One hundred forty-six students were given a medical examination, ninety-two were given tuberculin tests, and one hundred nine were given oral poliomyelitis vaccine. Your town participated with the state-wide program to eradicate German Measles by offering the Rubella vaccine to all children through grade six. Fifty-six children were inoculated with the Rubella vaccine. If during the medical examination at school or at the Child Health Conference a child were found with a physical defect, the public health nurse discussed the problem with the doctor and the parents then decided upon a cooperative plan of care that is within the family's physical, financial and emotional resources.

Nursing care visits were made to individuals suffering from cancer, diabetes, heart disease, tuberculosis, eye defects, dental defects, emotional and mental health problems, and other crippling conditions.

Visits are made to and in behalf of patients to teach nursing care such as the administration of medication according to the physician's orders; to help patients understand their doctor's recommendations; to help patients and families seek ways to carry out the doctor's instructions; to help patients procure transportation so they may keep medical appointments; and to help individuals seek the appropriate solution to their health needs.

Besides the individual and family health services, the community services include: the organization and administration of various health clinics; the formulation of a local health plan with interested persons; the coordination of the school health program; and the promotion of better health for all citizens.

Your public health nurse wishes to express her appreciation to all who have been interested and promoted your community health program.

Respectfully submitted,

BEATRICE S. NORTON, R. N.

Public Health Nurse
